Rise Up Media & Marketing Digital Business Card, Mobile App, and Personalized Mobile Interactive Website - <https://riseupmedia-marketing.vcardinfo.com/>

Tom Chesser

- Business Innovators magazine has been used by many celebrities to get their world out
- Authority press wire - syndicate to major new sources
- To get your message out there, you want to use recognition by a third party
- Share your book or your story and these networks will automatically be picked up and be syndicated across many other media sources

Jill Lublin

- You all have a message
- No matter where you are in your career, you have something to share
- Publicity gives you the 3 M's - magnetize, monetize, and multiply
- In today's marketplace, trust is essential
- Create the "I've heard of you somewhere" factor
- Everyone you can think of has been made because of publicity

Joy Noland

- Discussed how sports experts use publicity
- If you come to the table believing in what you really do, that is what creates exponential impact
- Most people think athletes are being paid to play a game, but they are really being paid to perform when they are under pressure
- When he was playing in the minors, a sports agent who is a publicity specialist for athletes approached him
 - Because he believed in himself to perform, they started bringing him contracts from high-level brands
- Don't be afraid to perform under pressure
- Everyone here has a gift or talent
- Ask yourself "do I believe in my gift?", once you are clear, then you collaborate with experts to help you share your message

How to become an expert in your field

- You are a brand
- Distributing and indexing your message across networks gives you power
- When you win an award, write an article about how much you appreciate the award, that you are a top expert in your field, and share why the award is important to you

How to customize your message

- You can shift the narrative about your topic by shifting the language you use
- You need to be speaking and talking in headlines
- What is the problem out there? Get off of what you do, or as Jill calls it, “beat the chest publicity” and focus on what is the problem out there that you provide a solution for
- Get creative so you can be the one who is the expert talking about hot topics
- Create and customize a message that is relevant and authentic and evolve your message
- Look at your message every 30 days to make sure it is congruent
- When Jill has a new book, she customizes her message
- Have an overarching umbrella for your message and be flexible to adjust your message so you can address the topics that are most relevant
- Shift and pivot your message to what story is essential - use everything you have got - you want to be the voice that is heard
- You watch for everything that is happening - launches, books, celebrities - all of it matters
- There is a war and we are all stressed by it - if you are in the comfort business, you need to be talking about it
 - Mindset, mental health, anxiety, depression are all very relevant topics today
- Always be looking at what is going on
- The great resignation - be talking about this topic if you are a leadership coach
- Have it be so that it serves your message and others - always be giving value - think and speak in headlines because on average, interviews are only 4 min long
- Create a message that is memorable
- Ask yourself, when you speak “where does it land with people?”

Be an authority in your field

- What need do you have a solution for?
- Without a solution, there is no sale
- Look to get branded as an authority brand and then capitalize and monetize that
- When Tom writes the article, he can put a sponsor in the article - when you can show the sponsor the distribution report of where that article went, you will get their attention and they may put you on their show or find other ways to help you get your message out there
- When Tom writes an article, it gets distributed to over 600 networks because it's a media-worthy story
- Find out what the need is first and then match your story and your solution with the need

- Google and major media networks are starving for stories that address the need

Create the “I have heard of your somewhere syndrome”

- Schedule half an hour a week to be seen and heard
- Write an article and post it on <https://medium.com/>
- Go to i-tunes and look for some podcasts - e.g., if you are a leadership coach, write “leadership” in the search and pitch people who are talking about what you are an expert in
- Sign up for Help a Reporter Out <https://www.helpareporter.com/>
 - Look for ways to connect your message with what hot topics are covered
- Go to Google alerts and put in your name and one word e.g., when Jill’s book The Profit of Kindness came out, she put in the word “kindness” in Google alerts
 - That will help you know when people are talking about your topic

Tap into other networks

- Go on Ted Talks and comment on people who are talking about what you are an expert in, comment on their talk - this allows you to tap into their authority
- Google My Business - download the app - put videos, articles, photos on your page
- What is most important is to find the superhero in your - what need do you help? Who would you save?
- Join networking events - jump in and be helpful while you are in there
- Clubhouse events
 - Be ready with nuggets that can really add value
 - Sometimes the most basic teachings can create the most impact

Maximize your global market

- Make your message as global as possible
- Watch your jargon and your cultural words
- Present your information differently based on who you are talking to

When promoting a book

- Repeat the title 3-4 times during an interview
- Your book is a new book the whole year it is released
- Focus on your targetted audience
- Speak with certainty
 - On a post-it note have the main points of your message with sound bites they can remember
- Look at what are the relevant holidays for what you are promoting and what you are good at

- le: International woman's month
- <https://nationaldaycalendar.com/>
- Do the interview and drive people to your free gift on your website
- Jill did an optin to her free gift and then they have an option to join a masterclass - when she did that she doubled how many people joined in
- The book is the step up to how people work with you
- Take some things from your book and put them in 500-word articles and post on <https://ezinearticles.com/> and <https://medium.com/>
- Include the words: guarantee, success, you will start attracting ie: I guarantee you will love this

Be known as the expert in your field

- le: when there is a tragedy in the news - they need a solution to the problem
- It is about the need the people are going through
- Have the story about you in the media before that story happens so you are recognized as the authority in your space
- Get out there and tell the story before they need the story because they will see you as an expert
- Write it to the industry that you are working in
- Do podcast interviews and have someone write an article about the interview that you did - have someone who knows how to master the story about the wisdom you shared on the podcast
- Tom is writing articles about what other people think of Doria.
 - Have a third party person who can tell about the impact you have made in their lives - especially people who are already in the spotlight
- What is the end game? Where is it going to lead and where do you want it to lead? Start seeing yourself as the person who has already got there.
